NPRM-8093

BEFORE THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION:

In the Matter of NPRM-8093

RECEIVED

MAY 19 1993

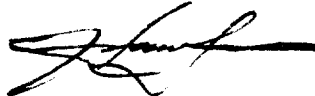

The United States of America is under siege by an element of its population seeking to destroy America's standards of excellence. This ranges from acceptance of improper use of the English language to promoting higher compensation for sub-standard performance in the workplace.

FCC MAIL ROOM

NPRM-8093 seeks to lower the standard of excellence so long characteristic of amateur radio operators licensed by the Commission.

The Commission should strengthen its requirements for operating privileges in its various classes of licenses; the Commission should expand its incentive licensing program. Sheer numbers of operators enjoying privileges not earned through technical excellence only deteriorates the strength of our country.

NPRM-8093 must be denied.
